Gynaecological scans

An internal transvaginal ultrasound is usually performed for gynaecological examinations and in early pregnancy. If this technique is not appropriate for you, please advise our staff and attend with a full bladder.

Obstetric scans

Partners or other support persons are welcome to attend.

Very young children are rarely able to understand all the images or concentrate for the scan duration. If they then seek your attention your own enjoyment and involvement in the scan may be diminished. Unsettled children may disrupt the concentration of the doctor performing the scan.

A DVD of the 12 week and 20 week scans is complimentary.
